A DIFFERENT KIND OF PARENTING GROUP

If you’re reading this then you’re a concerned parent or co-parent who only wants the best for your children. You know there are obvious do’s and don’ts in parenting.

Other times though it’s not as straightforward. If you’re like most parents you find yourself confused, frustrated and overwhelmed as a parent often wondering if you’re making the right parenting choices for your children. This group has been designed to help parents and co-parents alike feel confident and less burdened as they parent, which will happen to have a ripple affect for your child(ren).

This group will help you develop a parenting framework that you will always have to reference. This framework will not come from the facilitator telling you what it is, but rather through each participant discovering their own.

Certainly there will be education components of this group but ultimately we will focus on helping the participants feel confident in their choices. You don’t have to second-guess yourself as a parent any more.

Additional issues of parenting will be addressed. Group participants will have the opportunity to share their experiences and learn from others.
